The London Games will use a mix of new, temporary and existing venues to showcase athletes and sports in spectacular settings and will feature 26 sports and a total of 38 disciplines. The majority of the Games venues are located in the metropolitan area of London, within three compact geographic zones; however some sports will take place at venues throughout the U.K.

In London, the three geographic zones are:

- Olympic Zone
- River Zone
- Central Zone

The Olympic Zone, in London's east area of Stratford. Within the 2 km Olympic Park are the venues for the ceremonies, athletics, swimming, cycling, fencing, hockey, handball and basketball. The venues will be easily accessible through a network of footbridges and walkways.

The River Zone, straddling the River Thames, contains venues for boxing, artistic gymnastics and equestrian. The relatively new O2 Arena, where several sports are held, is the former Millennium Dome.

The remaining venues in the Greater London area will be a part of the Central Zone. Wembley Stadium, Lord's Cricket Ground and Hyde Park, as well as most of the Olympic Marathon Course, are all part of several venues in this zone.
